COURSE CATALOG DESCRIPTION
Theoretical approaches to the study of the policy process, policy elements, policy tools, (e.g., regulation), and policy typologies. PREREQS: Departmental approval required.

COURSE OVERVIEW
Public policy can be studied in a variety of ways. In general, students tend to be most familiar with approaches that focus on the content of public policy: specific policy prescriptions, regulations, incentives, etc. A policy analysis or a policy evaluation course, for example, would likely spend a great deal of time on this content focused way of understanding public policy. This course takes a different approach.

The title of this course is Public Policy Theory. As such, this class will take a broader more general view of public policy than the content focus most students already understand or intuitively gravitate toward. This class focuses more so on understanding the processes of public policy as opposed to the specifics of any particular policy or context. In a way, any policy content we embrace is incidental or merely illustrative of the processes that are the focus of this class. As you can imagine, such a view of public policy is necessarily wide-angle, sweeping, and in need of both reliable assumptions and generalizations. The intent with this kind of approach is to better understand the how and why of policy. Why and how do some policies end up on the agenda and others do not? Why and how do some policies fail and others succeed? Who makes decisions? When does policy change or policy learning occur? These kinds of questions guide the content and course readings of this class. As we move through our exploration you will observe that different approaches have been applied to different questions to varying effect. Consequently, we have seen a proliferation of policy process approaches where no one approach works equally well for all questions or contexts. Our goal is to explore the major approaches.

COMMUNICATION
Please post all course-related questions in the General Discussion Forum so that the whole class may benefit from our conversation. Please email your instructor for matters of a personal nature. I will reply to course-related questions and email within 24-48 hours. I will strive to return your assignments and grades for course activities to you within five days of the due date.

COURSE CREDITS
This course combines approximately 120 hours of instruction, online activities, and assignments for 4 credits.
TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE
If you experience computer difficulties, need help downloading a browser or plug-in, assistance logging into the course, or if you experience any errors or problems while in your online course, contact the OSU Help Desk for assistance. You can call (541) 737-3474, email osuhelpdesk@oregonstate.edu or visit the OSU Computer Helpdesk online.

LEARNING RESOURCES
All books are available through the OSU Beaver Store and other readings are available at the course Canvas site. You also can purchase books from Amazon, Barnes & Noble, etc. Readings are divided into three types: 1) core texts refer to texts which will provide the foundational material for the course; 2) auxiliary texts refers to books that are used as alternatives to or critiques of our foundational material; and, 3) Web Readings and External Links, which will supplement our other texts and guide critical discussions.

The core texts:
   This book provides an excellent overview of the mainstream approaches to studying the policy process including but not limited to institutional rational choice, social construction, narrative policy framework, punctuated equilibrium and the advocacy coalition framework.

   This book approaches major questions posed by policy scholars (and practitioners) and makes some attempt to provide a broad sense of what answers have been produced, and then evaluate those answers.

Auxiliary texts:
   Provides an alternative class based sociological macro-framework for analyzing the policy process and power relationships in the U.S. context (although much of this framework could be applied to other countries as well).

   Stone’s book can and should be read as a postmodern critique of dominant economic approaches to the study of public policy. Read for basic concepts, not details. She includes one or two tables in most chapters as excellent summaries after you have read the chapter.

Web Readings and External Links:
There are numerous required articles, chapters and external web links required. All readings are located under “Modules” located at the course Canvas site.

Note to prospective students: Please check with the OSU Bookstore for up-to-date information for the term you enroll (http://osubeaverstore.com/Academics or 800-595-0357). If you purchase course materials from other sources, be very careful to obtain the correct ISBN.
CANVAS
This course will be delivered via Canvas where you will interact with your classmates and with your instructor. Within the course Canvas site, you will access the learning materials, such as the syllabus, class discussions, assignments, and projects. To preview how an online course works, visit the Ecampus Course Demo. For technical assistance, please visit Ecampus Technical Help.

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES
The course seeks to develop in students...
1. A sense of alternative approaches to the examination of public policy and of their respective strengths and limits.
2. Awareness of the role of interests, ideas, knowledge, uncertainties, and other factors in relation to the development and consideration of public policy.
3. Awareness of factors that affect whether and how topics become “problems” and get on the agendas of government for consideration.
4. A sense of approaches toward and tools of policy formulation and policy enactment, including the importance of language and other political elements that affect public and elite perceptions and actions.
5. Recognition of the importance of policy application (implementation, and its sub-component, budgeting) and awareness of factors that affect the relative success of implementation of policy decisions.
6. Awareness of the complexity of policy evaluation in terms of mixes of values, interests, competing orientations, and other factors, and of the ubiquity and effect of the evaluation of policies.
7. Conceptual clarity in evaluating overall policy development, drawing on various approaches that attempt to account for those developments.
8. The ability to synthesize all these to a specific area of public policy development.
9. Enhanced ability to explore policy issues and to present the results of those explorations clearly, concisely, and in compelling form in written and oral communication.

Additional skill set outcomes:
A. Learn how to write a policy brief.
B. Develop presentation skills.
C. Ability to facilitate group discussion.
D. Ability to work with groups.
E. Ability to take on leadership roles.

EVALUATION OF STUDENT PERFORMANCE

Weekly Canvas Discussion
Participation in NINE weekly Canvas discussion groups is required beginning Week 2. Discussion topics should relate to the week’s assigned readings and other relevant observations. Each student must submit ONE original posting by Wednesday (11:00 pm). Then each student is responsible for TWO additional replies (minimum) to another student’s posting by Sunday (11:00 pm).

Article Précis/Reaction Paper
Each MPP student is responsible for submitting FOUR précis/reaction papers. There are ten opportunities to submit these assignments. Each précis/reaction paper should be a succinct two-page paper (single-spaced, 11 point, times new roman font, with normal borders) that distills the essential elements of the assigned article and related elements of the core readings. For the purposes of this class, these essential elements are defined as:

1. Theory: Summarize the policy process framework. You should identify the core components and subcomponents, as well as core processes and relationships (you should supplement this section with core readings for that week).

2. Method: Briefly summarize the methods used in the study.

3. Findings: Briefly summarize the findings in the study.

4. Compare and/or Strengths and Weaknesses: Briefly compare/contrast this study with policy process frameworks that we have already covered in the course (e.g., you might note where another framework might be more useful; why “this” framework is especially useful for this case). If you do not feel comparison is appropriate, please speak to the strengths and weaknesses of the study (both theoretical and methodological).

5. Practical Utility: Speculate about how useful this process framework and this type of study would be to a practitioner. (If you were working as a policy analyst, when would you use this? When would you avoid it? Why?)

6. Brilliant Insights or Thoughts: Category six is the only reason you should go over two pages. As to what you write here, well….hard to say: it should be brilliant though! (And no more than one additional page).

7. Be sure to cite appropriately and include a reference page (this page will not be counted against your page limit).

The précis/reaction paper assignments are intended to accomplish two goals. The first goal is to help students distill the intricate and complex policy process approaches we cover in class into manageable and memorable core concepts. I want each of you to be able to return to these papers and quickly remember what it is about this or that framework that was important. Second, each of the papers will be written on actual academic research. This is important (and we will learn in this class) because policy people rarely use academic research to make policy. My hope is that when you go out into the policy world, you will be better equipped to bridge the aloof ivory tower and the messy political world of actual public policy making (including analysis, evaluation, and implementation). I want to emphasize, however, that students in my past courses have found these to be very difficult papers to write because of the required brevity and precision. Please budget an appropriate amount of time (i.e., likely more than your initial inclination) to complete these assignments.

<tr>
<th>Policy Theory Paper</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>The major project in the course is a policy theory paper in which you apply course materials and review extant scholarship and research to better understand a policy area or policy problem of your own choosing. This assignment usually works best if the topic is relevant to your own interests and/or degree track (e.g., ocean policy, forest policy, water policy, health policy, rural policy, etc.). The paper should be 15-20 pages (double-spaced, normal font, standard margins, numbered, etc.) and is worth a maximum of 300 points. Papers should use a consistent citation format, have proper grammar and spelling, and presents a proper introduction. If there are multiple spelling errors, bad grammar, or a failure to communicate the thrust of your paper in the introduction, I will not read the rest of the paper. An Initial Policy Theory Paper statement due (1-2 pages plus outline) is due in class on January 14. This statement should include the topic, paper outline, and at least 5 references on the topic. Failure to submit the statement will result in a lower final score. The final paper is due March 17th by 6:00 pm.</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Your analysis should include the components below. In each case it is essential that you draw on and cite relevant course and other materials:

1. Introduction: This section introduces your chosen policy area or problem. In this section you want to briefly establish why your policy area is important, how your paper addresses the policy area or problem, and tell us where your paper is going and how it plans to get there.

2. Literature Review of Your Policy Area/Problem: In this section you want to have an extended discussion of what was introduced in the introduction about your policy area/problem (a rule of thumb here is that a sentence in the intro usually equals a paragraph in the body of the paper, but this is only a rule of thumb). In this section will overview your policy area by detailing what has happened (e.g., on the agenda, passed, being implemented; or put on agenda but failed to pass), the emergence of key issues/concerns/etc., and the current status of your policy area or problem. Most importantly, however, your literature review will tell us what we already know in terms of extant research (when it comes to sources academic presses and peer-reviewed journals are best. Focus on these where possible—but other sources can and should be consulted, such as government agency reports, trade books from trustworthy sources, etc.)

3. Theories of the Policy Process and Your Policy Area/Problem: In this section you will need to determine what the various theories, policy sub-fields, and policy process frameworks have to say about your policy area or problem (e.g., ACF, IAD, Multiple Streams, policy evaluation studies, policy analysis reports, etc.). You do not need to cover every single theory, sub-field, or framework that we covered in class. In most cases what you pay attention to will be dictated by what has been done; in some cases however, (such as if you picked the broad area of environmental policy), you might find you have too many sources. In those cases pick the best of what you find.

4. Assess the Theories of the Policy Process and your area: What aspects of your policy or problem have been addressed extensively? To what end? Where is work needed? Are there similar findings produced by different frameworks? Ultimately, how this section is structured will depend on what you found in the previous section. The important part here is that you need to think synthetically (synthesize what you found), comparatively (compare findings, approaches, etc.), and analytically (argue and write well).

5. Moving Forward: In this final section, you have the opportunity to map where you would like to see policy theory to better understand your policy area/problem. You can focus on whatever you like here: solutions, gaps in our knowledge, a specific research design that you would like to employ, etc.

In order to help facilitate a quality paper, your policy theory paper will be “turned in” for assessment at several critical points throughout the semester. The rubric used to evaluate this paper is available:

COURSE POLICIES

Discussion Participation

Students are expected to participate in all graded discussions. While there is great flexibility in online courses, this is not a self-paced course. You will need to participate in our discussions on at least two different days each week, with your first post due no later than Wednesday evening, and your second and third posts due by the end of each week.

Incompletes

Incomplete (I) grades will be granted only in emergency cases (usually only for a death in the family, major illness or injury, or birth of your child), and if the student has turned in 80% of the points possible (in other words, usually everything but the final paper). If you are having any difficulty that might prevent you completing the coursework, please don’t wait until the end of the term; let me know right away.

Guidelines for a Productive and Effective Online Classroom

Students are expected to conduct themselves in the course (e.g., on discussion boards, email) in compliance with the university’s regulations regarding civility.

Civility is an essential ingredient for academic discourse. All communications for this course should be conducted constructively, civilly, and respectfully. Differences in beliefs, opinions, and approaches are to be expected. In all you say and do for this course, be professional. Please bring any communications you believe to be in violation of this class policy to the attention of your instructor.

Active interaction with peers and your instructor is essential to success in this online course, paying particular attention to the following:

- Unless indicated otherwise, please complete the readings and view other instructional materials for each week before participating in the discussion board.
- Read your posts carefully before submitting them.
- Be respectful of others and their opinions, valuing diversity in backgrounds, abilities, and experiences.
• Challenging the ideas held by others is an integral aspect of critical thinking and the academic process. Please word your responses carefully, and recognize that others are expected to challenge your ideas. A positive atmosphere of healthy debate is encouraged.

Statement Regarding Students with Disabilities
Accommodations for students with disabilities are determined and approved by Disability Access Services (DAS). If you, as a student, believe you are eligible for accommodations but have not obtained approval please contact DAS immediately at 541-737-4098 or at http://ds.oregonstate.edu. DAS notifies students and faculty members of approved academic accommodations and coordinates implementation of those accommodations. While not required, students and faculty members are encouraged to discuss details of the implementation of individual accommodations.

Accessibility of Course Materials
All materials used in this course are accessible at the Canvas wwebsite (excluding required textbooks). If you require accommodations please contact Disability Access Services (DAS).

Additionally, Canvas, the learning management system through which this course is offered, provides a vendor statement certifying how the platform is accessible to students with disabilities.

Expectations for Student Conduct
Student conduct is governed by the university's policies, as explained in the Student Conduct Code.

Academic Integrity
Students are expected to comply with all regulations pertaining to academic honesty. For further information, visit Student Conduct and Community Standards, or contact the office of Student Conduct and Mediation at 541-737-3656.

OAR 576-015-0020 (2) Academic or Scholarly Dishonesty:

a) Academic or Scholarly Dishonesty is defined as an act of deception in which a Student seeks to claim credit for the work or effort of another person, or uses unauthorized materials or fabricated information in any academic work or research, either through the Student's own efforts or the efforts of another.

b) It includes:

(i) CHEATING - use or attempted use of unauthorized materials, information or study aids, or an act of deceit by which a Student attempts to misrepresent mastery of academic effort or information. This includes but is not limited to unauthorized copying or collaboration on a test or assignment, using prohibited materials and texts, any misuse of an electronic device, or using any deceptive means to gain academic credit.

(ii) FABRICATION - falsification or invention of any information including but not limited to falsifying research, inventing or exaggerating data, or listing incorrect or fictitious references.

(iii) ASSISTING - helping another commit an act of academic dishonesty. This includes but is not limited to paying or bribing someone to acquire a test or assignment, changing someone's grades or academic records, taking a test/doing an assignment for someone else by any means, including misuse of an electronic device. It is a violation of Oregon state law to create and offer to sell part or all of an educational assignment to another person (ORS 165.114).

(iv) TAMPERING - altering or interfering with evaluation instruments or documents.

(v) PLAGIARISM - representing the words or ideas of another person or presenting someone else's words, ideas, artistry or data as one's own, or using one's own previously submitted work. Plagiarism includes but is not limited to copying another person's work (including unpublished material) without appropriate referencing, presenting someone else's opinions and theories as one's own, or working jointly on a project and then submitting it as one's own.

c) Academic Dishonesty cases are handled initially by the academic units, following the process outlined in the University's Academic Dishonesty Report Form, and will also be referred to SCCS for action under these rules.

Conduct in this Online Classroom
Students are expected to conduct themselves in the course (e.g., on discussion boards, email postings) in compliance with the university's regulations regarding civility.

Tutoring
NetTutor is a leading provider of online tutoring and learner support services fully staffed by experienced, trained and monitored tutors. Students connect to live tutors from any computer that has Internet access. NetTutor provides a virtual whiteboard that allows tutors and students to work on problems in a real time environment. They also have an online writing lab where tutors critique and return essays within 24 to 48 hours. Access NetTutor from within your Canvas class by clicking on the NetTutor button in your course menu.

OSU Student Evaluation of Teaching
Course evaluation results are extremely important and are used to help me improve this course and the learning experience of future students. Results from the 19 multiple choice questions are tabulated anonymously and go directly to instructors and department heads. Student comments on the open-ended questions are compiled and confidentially forwarded to each instructor, per OSU procedures. The online Student Evaluation of Teaching form will be available toward the end of each term, and you will be sent instructions via ONID by the Office of Academic Programs, Assessment, and Accreditation. You will log in to “Student Online Services” to respond to the online questionnaire. The results on the form are anonymous and are not tabulated until after grades are posted.
